COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

The law requires that dogs that are six months old on April 1st be licensed by the Town Clerk. In checking with the Clerk it is found that there are still a few dogs that have not been licensed for 1957. Anyone can be summoned into court and subjected to a fine of $25 for keeping an unlicensed dog. The usual procedure is to first turn over a list of persons owing dog taxes to a Dog Constable for collection which then may be followed up by an appearance in court. In any event it is cheaper to license the dog first than to wait to have it placed in the hands of a Dog Constable.

There is a welfare case consisting of a mother and three small children who are in need of four chairs. If anyone has any kitchen or dining room chairs that they have no further use for it would be appreciated if they would contact this office. Anything will do as long as it is usable.

During the past week the painting of the parking areas and no parking lines has taken place. If persons parking their vehicles will follow these lines orderly parking will result.

The only traffic congestion that I have observed is in the area near the post office. With parking on both sides of the street, and the street not being very wide, it is rather difficult for two cars to meet in this area at times. Changes should be taken under consideration to improve this situation at some future time.

Sincerely,
Harold L. Bean

MOLLYCKETT'S STORY THEME OF BETHEL BAZAAR THIS YEAR

The annual Bethel Bazaar, to be held this year on Saturday, July 27, is to be known as Mollyckett Day. The following article on her life will be of special interest in connection with this event.

As the present publicity over the adventures of the second Mayflower gains prestige and the pageantry of the festival at Jamestown is receiving national attention, the planning committee of the Bethel Health and Service Council has decided to develop a bit of our own local folklore through the character of Mollyckett, the famed "Indian doctor" in this area during the eighteenth century, when our ancestors were just starting to settle this area.

The story of Mollyckett is essentially one of the romance and tragedy of a beautiful Indian princess who was denied her true heritage when her tribe was ravaged by an epidemic of small pox. As a "displaced" person who refused to leave her tribal area when the remnants of her tribe moved northward into Canada, Mollyckett successfully bridged the gap of two cultures and her name has lived on from the 18th century to become a symbol of wisdom and friendliness; mixed with the lore of buried treasure, the incantation of an oath and the rescue of a white man from certain death.

Mollyckett's birthdate is not known, but when she died and was buried in Andover in 1816 it was recorded that she was over 100 years old and she was listed as the last of Pequakets although she told many settlers she was a St. Francis Indian. This apparent contradiction is explained by the fact that early in the 18th century the Indian authorities invited the Canadian tribes of Western Maine to make settlements on the St. Francis River and two tribes, the Pequakets and the Anasagunticook, gave up their ancient tribal names continued on Page Eight

GREENLEAF - DOUGLASS

Baskets of daisies and pink garden flowers at the foot of an evergreen archway provided a very effective setting at the Upton Congregational Church, Sunday, July 7th, when Elizabeth Ann Douglass, daughter of Mr and Mrs Howard Douglass of Upton became the bride of Sherman Eldon Greenleaf, son of Dr and Mrs Sherman S Greenleaf of Bethel.

Rev Clifford Laws performed the double ring ceremony, and traditional wedding music was played by Mrs Donald Brown of Bethel.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of imported lace and silk shantung fashioned with a scalloped neckline and long sleeves, the full skirt ending in a train. Her fingertip veil of nylon tulle was caught to a cap embellished with tiny seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations.

Mrs Mary Ellen Rolfe, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a ballerina length gown of pink embroidered nylon with matching hat, and carried a cascade bouquet of blue carnations.

Gowned in embroidered blue nylon with matching hats and carrying cascade bouquets of pink carnations were the bridesmaids, Miss Carla Grover and Miss Roberta Bean of Bethel and Miss Betty Murrell of Northeast Harbor.

The flower girls were Velora Douglass, sister of the bride, and Danna Brown, niece of the groom. They wore pink dresses of flocked nylon with matching floral headbands.

The ring bearer was Nelson Douglass, brother of the bride. Another brother of the bride, John Douglass, was train bearer. Robert Greenleaf, brother of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were John Greenleaf, Carroll Lutton, Stanley Gallant of Bethel and Donald Croteau of Berlin.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs Douglass wore a rose lace dress. Her corsage was of white carnations. Mrs Greenleaf wore a light blue embroidered voile dress and her corsage was pink carnations.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held on the lawn at the home of the bride's parents where the guest book was circulated by Miss Joan Conner, cousin of the bride. Lawrence Davis, Mrs O B George and Mrs Katherine Wright assisted with the serving. Mrs Shirley Staples was gift hostess.

For traveling the bride wore a blue and white dress with white accessories. Following a trip to Canada Mr and Mrs Greenleaf will reside on Elm Street in Bethel.

OPERATION ALERT ALARM TO SOUND FRIDAY AFTERNOON

As a reminder in conjunction with their year's Civil Defense exercise Operation Alert, Walter H Kennett, State C D Director, has urged all Maine citizens to memorize the aid raid instructions and actions to be taken when the siren sounds.

Kennett said Maine's 940 thousand residents and all out-of-state visitors will be requested to take cover for thirteen minutes at the sound of sirens during Operation Alert. The signal will be sounded sometime after noon Friday, July 12.

This take cover signal is a three-minute wailing siren, or three minutes of short blasts on sirens, whistle, horns or similar devices.

The instructions are: At home—Get into your shelter immediately. If you have none, shut all outside windows and doors and take cover in the basement or an interior first-floor room.

Outdoors—Seek the best available cover. Motorists will be asked to stop and pull to the side of the road.

For the purposes of Operation Alert, the national CD exercise, citizens will resume their normal routines 13 minutes after the sound of the take cover signal.

WILDER DISCIPLINE IS NEEDED

Puppies invariably make a mess of houses—until they are sternly disciplined and taught to be clean and decent members of the family.

One wishes that a similar discipline could be imposed on the "litterbugs" who strew discarded paper, beer cans, empty bottles and all manner of other rubbish and dirt along the highways, in recreation areas, and in beauty spots throughout the nation.

The litterbugs have the crude manners of untrained puppies—without any of the puppies' excuses.

Your Washington Report

Congressman ROBERT HALE

State Responsibility — Our 48 states would do well to heed the recent advice of President Eisenhower urging them to retrieve responsibilities which have been assumed by the Government.

The President observed at the annual Governors' Conference that it is idle to champion states' rights without upholding states' responsibilities as well.

As Mr. Eisenhower pointed out, many activities have been undertaken by the Federal Government because of the inaction or inadequate action of the states. Unless the states halt this trend, they are certain to become powerless satellites of the National Government.

For example, the states have looked to Washington for assistance on such matters as atomic clearance and urban renewal, water pollution, traffic safety, school construction, and problems caused by natural disaster.

The alarming magnitude of Federal assistance to the states was revealed recently in a report by the Joint Committee on the Reduction of Governmental Expenditures.

Federal grants-in-aid to states and local units and payments to individuals within states amounted to almost $24 billion in the period 1949-53, for a yearly average of about $4.8 billion.

The 1955 amount was almost $5.5 billion more than the yearly average. Thus the handouts are increasing, while state responsibilities and control are decreasing.

Maine has not accepted as much in proportion to her population as have other states. The record shows about $20 million from 1949-53, which works out at about $4.00 per capita. New York State averaged the largest amount, $100 million.

The $100 million paid to New York State for the purchase of the Erie Canal was not counted as a grant-in-aid, but it was counted as a loan.

Most Maine-Aid grant recipients feel that the Federal government should not be asked to do more than to help the states in their efforts to solve their own problems.

The report also noted a continuing trend of Federal control over the states, and that the Federal government has been the cause of a number of state government failures.

The report also noted that the Federal government has been the cause of a number of state government failures.

Budget-Price House
From New Homes Guide

Architect Jan Reimer, who designed this compact little house shown in the 37th edition of NEW HOMES GUIDE magazine, planned it as a home to be built on a budget. The lines are simple—almost square in plan—to avoid the extra construction expenses of angles and corners. Still everything necessary for modern livability has been included. The kitchen has a living-dining space and a built-in barbecue. The living room is quite spacious and the second bedroom can double as a den or study. House area is 650 sq. ft. For blueprint information, write NEW HOMES GUIDE, Dept. 1032, 621 N. Dearborn, Chicago 10.

DON'T BUY ANY CAR BEFORE YOU DRIVE A CHEVY... ITS BEST SHOWROOM IS THE ROAD.

Here's why Chevy's best showroom is the road!

Because Chevrolet's sleek good looks, its advanced features, are only part of the story. The big bonus is its remarkable roadability, the crisp precision handling that has posted an entirely new standard for cars in every price class. There are reasons for this, of course: Chevrolet's balanced weight distribution that takes excessive loads off the front wheels, the wide stance of outrigger rear springs, Ball-Race steering, spherical-joint front suspension. Sure, you can admire the sculptured lines in the showroom. But Chevy's a car especially designed for beautiful motion—you have to travel in this one to know just how terrific it is. Try it, this week!

MOLLYCOKETT RETURNS

Mollycokett, rightfully retained great pride in her tribal history and often told how famous and good her father and grandfather had been as tribal chieftains. At such times it would not be hard to visualize her as standing tall and beautiful, with the soft, supple copper tone of skin, glistening hair, glowing vitality and lithe gracefulness that has so inspired some of this country's greatest poets. Her dark violet eyes gave her an expression of inner fineness and wisdom that was to make her outstanding and welcome long after her beauty and youth had disappeared. But unlike most descriptions of her race Mollycokett was very loquacious, even engaging in public speaking for her new found friends the Methodists. Possibly this characteristic is a true indication of her royal birth; as one might suppose a chieftain's daughter to be, more intelligent and because of better training—more eloquent.

With the departure of her tribe from here Mollycokett became a great traveler, restlessly roaming this whole area; with her favorite trek being from Andover through Bethel and on to Paris Hill. In fact, such trek is the basis for one of the more interesting legends concerning her wisdom and ability as a "doctor." The urge to make this trip in mid-winter, inspired by an almost telepathic summons bounded by her beliefs in the Great Spirit, Catholicism and Methodism, all of which had been part of her training and experience, was justified by her saving of an important life and led to her being known as a great "doctor," humanitarian and prophet. The records do not give the details of the suffering she must have endured to fulfill this urge to be in Paris Hill, highlighting only the terrible curse which she, with the help of the Great Spirit pronounced upon the unfriendly white settlers and their land at Snow's Falls, because they refused her shelter from a raging blizzard when night caught her short of her destination. Next day when she finally arrived at Paris Hill she passed several houses, as if by plan, and when she finally knocked on a door and asked admittance, she was warmly welcomed by gentle folks who distraughtly explained that their baby was dying and that they could do no more to help him. The legend goes that even as they were explaining this sickness Mollycokett was searching her supply of herbs and told them she had come purposely to take care of their sick child. Dismissing the anxious parents from the sick room she administered her herb medicines to the baby with all the fore of her culture, covered his fever-wracked body with her home-made ointment and wrapped him in layers of blankets and gravely but confidently told the parents not to grieve—that he would recover. For days she tended the baby and as he recovered Mollycokett began to have new feelings, and when the time came for her to leave she blessed the youngster and told the parents that great fame and fortune would be his. Her prophecy was right, and many people believe that it was Mollycokett's genius and knowledge that saved Hannibal Hamlin, famous statesman and vice-president of the United States, to become the man beloved from shore to shore for his marvelous political insight!

One interesting detail remains, for her services Mollycokett gravely charged her customary fee—one penny, which it is said she hung around her neck in a pocket-like bag, giving rise to the little songs chanted of the children who followed her on her lonely way. "Mollycokett has lost her pocket—"

RECORD NUMBER OF SUMMER ACTIVITIES SCHEDULED

The July official Maine Calendar of Events, issued by the State of Maine Publicity Bureau, lists more activities scheduled for the Pine Tree State than ever before during the summer months.

Historical observances, golf, racing, open house days, art exhibits, food festivals, fairs and water activities taking place all over the State are listed.

The increase in numbers of activities around Maine this year is keeping pace with the increase of numbers of people traveling our Maine highways, according to Bernard M. Johnstone, Publicity Bureau Executive Manager.

"Early indications point to an excellent season," Johnstone stated, "and a continuation of the fine weather of spring and early summer should assure a high level of business in both the retail stores and the accommodations and servicing businesses depending on the vacation-travel income."
